

Competify Statement on Release of Broadband Opportunity Council Report

September 21, 2015

Today the White House has released their long awaited Broadband Opportunity Council Report.

Below is a statement from Competify and our partners:

“We applaud the White House for recognizing the importance of genuine competition in the broadband marketplace as a top priority in the Broadband Opportunity Council Report released earlier today. Not only does the report focus on the lack of competition in the high-speed broadband access market, the White House also recommends a clear path forward to ensure that consumers, businesses and institutions do not continue to needlessly suffer from a broadband economy plagued by chronic broadband access control. This move coupled with last week’s FCC announcement regarding the data collected on this disease, are the clearest signals yet that relief is on the horizon.”

Competify Partners for the Cure include: Ad Hoc Telecommunications Users Committee, Broadband Coalition, BT, Competitive Carriers Association (CCA), COMPTel, Computer & Communications Industry Association (CCIA), Engine, Schools, Health and Libraries Coalition (SHLB), Level 3, Public Knowledge, Sprint and XO.
